

Revising and Editing: What's the difference?

Revising: making it sound better	Editing: making it look better
Read your writing out loud to yourself or a partner and check for the following afterwards.: ____ Adding, changing, or deleting parts of the piece to help the writing flow. ____ Turning dull, worn out words into specific, vivid words. ____ Making sure your topic sentence is a roadmap that matches your evidence and explanations. ____ Adding specific descriptions, explanations, and details. ____ Moving text and organizing ideas in an order that makes the most sense.	Read your writing out loud to yourself or a partner and check for the following afterwards.: ____ Changing letters to capital or lowercase depending on position and proper name. ____ Correcting misspelled words. ____ Adding, deleting, or changing punctuation. ____ Indenting paragraphs ____ Adjusting sentence structures based on the grammar tools you know: *Check for complete sentences: noun and verb. * If compound, check that it is structured correctly.

Glows: What have I done well in my writing?	Grows: What do I need to focus on improving in my writing?

